“Otterbein—the Originating Years”

What became the community of Otterbein’s creation in 1872 actually got out of the gate with Benton County’s 1840 organizing. Named for Tomas H. Benton, a Missouri U.S. Senator—who was a leading statesman for western growth and believed in the future wealth and glory from the midwestern grassy plains (well-watered by the Mississippi River and its many tributaries) – Benton County was initiated by land speculation and development, from the efforts of regional visionaries like Henry L. Ellsworth, Moses Fowler, Adams Earl, and A.D. Raub. An actual extension of Illinois’ “grand prairie” of high, bluestem grasses, Benton County’s first major settlement/inaugural county seat was Milroy, renamed Oxford in 1843 (at this time, the famed Wabash and Erie Canal was expanding along Indiana’s primary Wabash River waterway: from Huntington down to Lafayette) and laid out by H.T. Howard. When the town of Fowler later arose (1871-1872), this resulted in a brief “courthouse war” with the original site of Oxford; Fowler took over the seat of Benton County, when the new courthouse was constructed and opened in 1874. Years after the American Civil War’s end (1865), Benton County already had in 1870 a population of 5,615.

To the southeast, past Templeton and towards nearby Tippecanoe County (only reachable, via a wooden-plank road), marshy but still productive land was typical for a general area known as “Pond Grove.” William Otterbein Brown, a local stock-raiser and farmer, was to donate land for both a possible community and a railroad right-of-way (one that was destined to connect this area with growing markets linked by the Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis, and Chicago Railroad/the “Big Four”—within what was eventually know as the “Nickel Plate” rail-system). With the new train depot established and Brown making his contributions for the town’s emergence—he became the first postmaster (1872–1879) of this settlement that later carried his name—this same year (1872, around October 25) witnessed 60 lots plotted out by John Levering. What might have been “Pond Grove Township” surrounding this now-surfacing town of Otterbein, instead became “Bolivar Township,” taken from Bolivar Finch (and borrowed by his father George Finch, form the South American liberator -Simon Bolivar) of Templeton; George and eldest son Bolivar operated the Templeton post office and a general store.

For Otterbein itself, its namesake of William Otterbein Brown left this world in 1879; by this time, however, not only did the new town have a rail depot and connections, but its first business (the Henry H. Moore general store) and home (built by Doctor John K. Thompson- what was later termed the “Coach House”) went up. (One of the first photographs, taken in 1878 and one that may show the town’s earliest layout, could have come from the top of an early grain elevator: revealing the dawning rail-lines and depot, plus what became Main Street.) More land would be attached to the community in 1883 (April 24) by Mary A. Clancy’s addition, in a period that now had more attention placed upon drying out marshes and converting them- with innovations like the George McAlister plow – into productive fields and grasslands. The era of the drain tile had arrived here in northwest Indiana.

They are currently accepting application and asked if the Council wanted to apply for a grant this round. The Council discussed Central Avenue. BF&S will assist with application for a not to exceed $5,000 billed at an hourly rate. Daniel Klumpe made the motion to proceed with a grant application for Central Avenue with BF&S assisting. Jackey Apache seconded the motion, and all were in favor. He then discussed that he has been contacted by Indiana American Water (IAW) to provide information to them so they can make an offer to purchase the town's utilities. It would take some time and money to produce what they are requesting. Daniel Klumpe made the motion to not proceed with obtaining an offer from IAW at this time. Amy Brown seconded the motion, and all were in favor.

Town Marshal Jason Pritchett gave a department update. He also discussed a request to move the handicap spot downtown. Ron will contact Tim Clark to ask his opinion of handicap parking requirement, since he is trained in this area, and report back.

Lukas Darling, Deputy Town Administrator presented Ordinance 2022-0120B to set the policy for Large Item Pickup in town. With the addition of the town will not pick up grease and oils; Daniel Klumpe made the motion to adopt Ordinance 2022-0120B. Amy Brown seconded the motion, and all were in favor. Ron Shoup, Town Administrator update the Council on the planning of the Sesquicentennial (150 years of Otterbein) celebration this year during the Otterbein Street Festival. The committee has been working with a carnival company to bring a carnival back to town, like Otterbein use to have. Before proceeding negotiation with the company, he wanted to make sure they are fine with this, and with the downtown area being shut off for multiple days to bring such a celebration. The council is unanimous with proceeding.

Clerk-Treasurer gave the 2021 Year-End financial report to the Council. The 2021 Year ended well financially; only concern; we were not able to transfer to the depreciation accounts in 2021. She presented Ordinance 2022-0120A an Amendment to the 2022 Salary Ordinance to correct an incorrect Overtime Rate for the Water/Park & Street Operator position. Amy Brown made the motion to adopt Ordinance 2022-0120A. Daniel Klumpe seconded the motion, and all were in favor. She then brought the Council Approval required limit for purchasing, as everything has gone up; it is becoming that it is requiring Council approval for almost everything. Currently all purchases over $100 need to get Clerk-Treasurer approval and any purchase over $500 needs Council approval. She is proposing that the Clerk-Treasurer approval remain at $100 but the Council approval be increased to $1,000. Amy Brown made the motion to raise Council approval for purchases to be anything $1,000 or more. Jackey Apache seconded the motion, and all were in favor. Lastly, she brought up the flowers for the Downtown hanging baskets. The order will need to be placed. The Council unanimously approved Treeva to purchase items for the baskets for a not to exceed $2,000.

With nothing else to come before the Council, Jackey Apache made the motion to adjourn at 7:23 PM. Amy Brown seconded the motion, and all were in favor.
